

University of Salford
A Greater Manchester University

Vocational Rehabilitation 30 credit Masters (Level 7)

Course is aimed at anyone who works with patients/clients/employees who are struggling to stay in work or return to work following illness or injury; or anyone who manages sickness absence in any context.

When does it start?

Attendance on campus is 10th, 11th and 12th February, 21st April, plus one day in May/June for assessment.

Why study at the University of Salford?

The programme is delivered by professionals who are internationally renowned in the area of Vocational Rehabilitation, including:

Dr. Lindsey Dugdill, Reader in Physical Activity and Health, University of Salford

Dr. Alison Hammond, Reader in Rheumatology, University of Salford
Gail Kovacs (of KMG Health Partners) who is a NIDMAR certified Disability Manager

Gail Sowden, Consultant Physiotherapist, Arthritis Research Council, National Primary Care Centre, Keele University

In addition, we have a positive approach to student support with an excellent personal tutor system and an easily accessible virtual learning environment so that you can study where and when is best for you.

What is included?

This module explores the obstacles, attitudes and rehabilitation skills that contribute to maintaining someone in work or helping them return to work.

- The principles of return to work coordination and disability management at work
- Potential obstacles to maintaining someone in work or returning to work
- Policy development and rehabilitation strategies
- Importance of these underpinning theory and principles in relation to your own work or practice content

What will you gain?

- A Masters level qualification that will add to your career development in this rapidly developing field
- Skills and knowledge that will transfer across a range of new and existing professional contexts
- Networking with a broad range of professionals
- The cost for completing the module is £950

For further information contact

Christine Parker on:

T: 0161 295 6419

E: c.parker1@salford.ac.uk

www.fhsc.salford.ac.uk

Faculty of Health & Social Care